

CANADIAN LEGION

GENERAL MEETING

Members of the Strathmore Branch Canadian Legion were honored at their General meeting held last Tuesday by an address on the many factors of interest to returned men, by John McKintosh, M.L.A. Dow River Constituency.

Comrade Rev. T. B. Winter, acting president, introducing the guest mentioned the port Comrade McKintosh had taken in community affairs at Brooks previous to his entry into provincial politics. Comrade McKintosh replying complimented the Branch on the fine spirit they had shown in being able to make possible the erection of the hall in which he was now privileged to speak. Dealing with the problems affecting ex-service men, the many steps were detailed in an interesting manner and the co-operation given by the soldier members of the Provincial house was illustrated by the information that an ex-service man from the different political groups, covering the various parts of the province, had been invited, and discussed any motion affecting returned men, before it was placed before the legislative assembly. The speaker advised that since consideration given by the Dominion Government was not shown by the province, but their efforts in endeavoring to have laws adjusted were meeting with success and stressed the point that every assistance

SUGGESTED LEGISLATURE

FOR ALBERTA

A writer to our esteemed contemporary, the Hanna Herald following up Editor McKintosh's suggestion of an excellent cabinet formed of newspaper Editors, compliments Mr. McCrea on his progressive thought and then comes forward with an amended suggestion, i.e. that the cabinet be formed of a woman not women, mark ye, but woman and straightaway nominates Mrs. Nellie McKeown as a woman well qualified to fill all the various portfolios of Health, Finance, Education, etc.

A very high compliment and a very large order. Our hats off to Mrs. McKeown.

BIG BUSINESS EXPOSURES

Hon. H. H. Stevens' investigating committee has not relaxed in its mission, and the evidence developing from day to day will remain in the memories of the public. Following on the heels of the Imperial Tobacco exposures comes the unveiling of the astute and pious Sir Joseph Flavelle. This name was associated with the Great War years, with deeds which were anything but knightly, and if titles are supposed to have significance, it is odd that Sir Joseph should read out of Canadian aristocracy.

However, Sir Joseph, despite the wealth accumulated at the expense of the Canadian army, still retains his facility for making easy money, and as a major stockholder in Robert Simpson's Limited up till 1929, he has been laying up great treasures on earth. To be sure, the name of Flavelle would not stand alone in this injury. His fellow stockholders share in the exposure of unethical business methods, unfair practices and unearned profits. But the reappearance of Sir Joseph in the less creditable annals of the country revives all the old memories of war years.

Our great Canadian business successes have in time, be regarded as great Canadian manufacturers. If Mr. Stevens' probing continues, it may even be considered in the course of years, that such men are as great a menace to society as the man who steals the piece of pie, or the article of clothing. If it were a law that no man could accumulate or hold more than $100,000 the rapacity of many of our industrialists would be curbed, and their energies turned to less harmful channels. Commenting on these exposures of packing houses, retail stores and big business generally, the Ottawa Times says: The farmer, stockman, primary producer of every nature, has a right to get better prices in any way that he bears the entire brunt while the usual distribution and manufacturing profits are maintained as usual.

High River Times

requested would be given the whole-hearted consideration of the ex-service members.

Comrade McKintosh has the gift of conveying much information in a pleasing and concise manner, his address being listened to with great attention, receiving hearty applause at its close. Practically an hour was taken up with questions and the answers were a sure indication of the interest taken as well as providing many humorous sallies and shafts of wit.

THE 1934 FRUIT SEASON

As the season is so early in B.C. the fruit growers and their neighbors here, when written to their friends on the prairie, should advise them to procure their fruit early.

The cherries started last year near to date, with finds then this year drawing to their close. Cherries will be running fully next week; and Raspberries, Loganberries and Black Currants will be ready this month, although the home canning of these, in most seasons does not start till July. The later fruits are likely to be proportionately early.

Among the varieties, which may be considered as average, are the following:—

Black Currant jelly, when well made is the outstanding jelly, and the jam when carefully prepared is delicious; but the value of the Black Currant is not confined to its utility as a sweetener. It is one of the oldest remedies known for throat troubles, and its use for this, which in the early days, was the result of exposure by country people, has been confirmed by medical authority. A drink which will relieve throat troubles, and which is very easy to make, from Black Currant preserves, or the jelly can be used for this purpose.

HERVEY NOTES

Quite a number of the Hervies enjoyed the fine weather at the Calgary Exhibition on Monday. We hope the weather continues this way until the end of fair week.

STREAMLINED TRAINS WILL BE RUN BY C.P.R. AS SOON AS POSSIBLE

It is my belief that every just regulation equally applicable to all transportation units, 85 to 99 per cent of the traffic of Canada would come to Canadian railroads because they are best equipped to handle it.

All that the railroads did in the last days of unregulated competition their competitors to save. There is no desire to prevent the public getting the benefit of any superiority over the passenger train. There is a desire to prevent the public getting the benefit of any superiority over the passenger train. There is a desire to prevent the public getting the benefit of any superiority over the passenger train.

The railroads will pursue the path of invention and progress as in the past. There will be continuous improvement in locomotives, trains, equipment, roadbed. There will from year to year be found greater advantages in comfort, safety, speed and efficiency. The railroads will not be left behind. They will keep pace with or outstrip competing services. There are just as fascinating projects for progress by railroads as in any other line.

In the early afternoon the weather was at its best, but at four o'clock the clouds gathered and rain fell and all hurried to their cars and shelter.

A splendid program of sports with several novelties added was carried through and provided much amusement for all from 3 to 7 years young.

A Cat game and a sack race and a ride delighted the hearts of the kiddies; a horse shoe pitching tournament was closely contested; A soft ball game, the teams being picked as to residence North or South of the river; Children's races; Sask races; grandstand races; fat men's races, all added their quota and last but not least was the rolling pin contest in which a group of ladies were to see who could throw the flattest, and it was said a woman never throws where she looks or aims. Several of the men were in imminent danger of receiving a spanking, as one o'clock a rolling pin lunch was served, after which the U.F.W.A. booth, when all did simple justice to the choice meats, salads, pies, cakes etc.

The dance in the Caledon community hall at night attracted a large crowd. The dancing was enjoyed by the light lanterns, the strains of sweet music supplied by the Primat orchestra.

MAKES GOOD SHOWING AT BRANDON

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Art Hay on his success at the Brandon Exhibition. His Holstein took 15 first prizes, 5 seconds and 2 thirds, all of standard; with the midday attractions, adding a few new features to the usual. The stampede events and horse races are attracting the large numbers with very enthusiastic visitors who have travelled many miles to see this stupendous entertainment put on as only Calgary knows how.

CALGARY EXHIBITION AND STAMPEDE

The dances are clever and artistic, elaborate, dainty and gorgeous, the music effects very beautiful with the wondrous nymphs and water maidens so entirely different and so graceful. The clever playing of the fountain giving the rainbow effect, in the land of the Midnight Sun was a very brilliant conception in somebody's mind. The very excellent singing of the Quartette, was a delight we would like repeated very often. Their singing of the Setette from Lucia de Lammermoor recited a heart of gold from the filled grandstand.

Scenes and dances showing Gay Paree a ball in London, The Land of the Jungle, Hawaii, etc. were all clever, clean and well executed.

The thousand and one mistakes by the show builders, who have been so long in the business, were all exceedingly clever. One just wonders how they timed everything to act just at the right moment. The showman's intuition provided many audible smiles.

The show wagon, which, what a picture of life it gives in its varied phases. That with the flying never complete without Billy Loreste to enliven the intervals. He is no usual part. The Exhibition Committee is to be commended for providing so excellent an entertainment.

Newsy Notes

Wool returns a substantial revenue to our farmers, particularly to those in the provinces of Quebec, Ontario and Alberta. Steady advances have been made in the quality of the clip, and there has been an earnest endeavor made to produce those grades most suitable for manufacture within the country, through the co-operation of growers and manufacturers. The annual clip averages over 20 million lbs. valued in 1932 at $2,000,000.

The most important group of British financiers yet to be interested in Alberta fields visited the province recently, including Rt. Hon. Lord Simon, Viscount Eldon, Hon. Byron Guinness, W.S. Eyre, Prominent Bankers; C.H. Bland, of Irving Estate trusts, and A.J. Taylor, director of the British Pacific Trusts Securities. The party paid a visit to Alberta oil fields in company with Hon. R.G. Reid and Hon. R.H. Greenfield, formerly Alberta Premier, and representatives of the oil industry in Alberta.

ARDENODE

Mr Fred Rambridge returned Sunday from a trip to Fort St. John, B.C.

Mr and Mrs Gadsby, Mrs Mathews, and Mrs and Mrs Greenwood all of Calgary spent Sunday visiting at the home of Mr and Mrs Geo Dawson.

Miss Marjorie Dawson is spending a few days in Strathmore a guest of Miss Ada Wright.

The Ardenode district was shocked Sunday to learn of the serious accident which befell Mr W. Edmundson in the early hours of Sunday morning. It is believed he was the victim of a hit and run driver. He was found by Mr Pavrek lying unconscious in the middle of the road suffering from terrible injuries. He was removed to a nearby farm house where Dr Gilfen and Constable Carter, both of Strathmore attended him. They ordered his removal to the General Hospital where he passed away.

at 1 p.m. Sunday noon. Mr Edmundson was our local elevator agent and during his stay at Ardenode he made many friends all of which we were shocked to learn of his untimely death.

Mrs. Dawson, Chandler and James left for Pine Lake last week to attend a few fishing seasons. We wonder?

LETHBRIDGE EXPERIMENTAL STATION WEEKLY LETTER

Fall wheat—Winter wheat has been grown at the Lethbridge Experimental Station the past 25 years and during this time the yields obtained have averaged nearly 5 bushels more per acre than spring wheat. Root, winter killing, early drought, soil drifting and winter annual weeds, principally running mustard, have been some of the difficulties encountered in growing winter wheat here, but with improved strains of seed and knowledge gained in its cultivation quite consistently high yields are being obtained with winter wheat, even though the crop this year was hard hit by the unusually prolonged drought in April and May.

Root rot, which was once a main difficulty here, has been overcome by sowing seedling wheat until after the first of September. Earlier seedlings of winter wheat make heavier fall and early spring growth but after late April or early May root rot usually becomes very prevalent in fields seeded before September, and crops that in the spring may have promised to produce 40 or more per acre frequently deteriorate so rapidly and to such an extent that only 12 to 15 bushels may be harvested. Seedling sometimes during the first ten days of September not only provides protection against root rot but this date of seeding is also quite early enough to ensure a satisfactory stand of grain for safe wintering.

Seeding in September has another important advantage in that the soil surface used not be disturbed during August when moths of the pale western cutworm are apt to be flying and depositing their eggs in the soil of cultivated fields wherever the surface crust has been broken.

The annual field and basket picnic at the Lethbridge Experimental Station will be held this year on August 4. Hon. F.S. Grisdale, newly appointed Minister of Agriculture for Alberta will speak. Control of soil drifting and other farming problems will be discussed by leading authorities. The programme starts at 10:30 A.M.

ESSAY ON NOBLE BOVINE

"The cow is a female quadruped with two sets of teeth and a countenance in which there is no guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filler for hush, sausage and similar objects, and at least is skinned by those she has benefited, as most male animals are.

The young cow is called a calf and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad, breaded veal and other uses of which no further knowledge is necessary.

The cow's tail is mounted at and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies, and the tassels on the end has unique educational value. Persons who come in contact with tassels have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a warehouse and has no other function. When this one is filled, the cow retires to a quiet spot where her manure will occasion no comment. The raw material thus conveyed to a second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach, where it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things. As a result she bites up and gums down.

WONDERFUL MOTHER NATURE

No matter what we may believe of the origins of the universe and man, no matter what we may believe of the future destiny of the worn out husk of human life, Nature our Mother is most wonderful to contemplate.

Follow the devious processes of development of a kernel of wheat from your seed bin, into the warm bed of the earth.

First a tiny, fragile, blade pushing through the chafe, spreading, strengthening, rising up, reaching to, forming more blades, more foliage. Then crystallizing into a beautiful head of wheat, taking on color, hardness, flavor and nutriment, until at last it returns forty-fold to your same wheat bin, after a scant hundred days in Mother Nature's laboratory.

Think of the grasses beneath your feet. Can you follow their intricate growth? Trampled, powdered, eaten in to the earth, the roots still survive and flourish.

Think of a field of clover or alfalfa in bloom. Then try to follow the trail of the nectar in those blossoms until it sits in a sealed can of honey in a grocery store.

It requires 50,000 clover blossoms to make one pound of honey. How infinitely small each unit of that nectar and yet what shiploads at last emerge from these tiny cells.

Think of a lush mulberry tree, heavy with its rank foliage. There are 300 miles of fibre in one pound of raw silk as spun by a silk worm. And yet from the mulberry leaf to the shod silk party dress, what a magical process of transformation.

In a Chicago hotel room a guest turns on a gas jet and reads and lives and turns night into day. And yet it is over one thousand miles to the gas well at Amarillo, Texas, from which this bright jet emerges in rushing, roaring billions of cubic feet.

The fire in your coal grate originated back in oblivion, millions of years ago. When you light that fire and warm yourself by that lump of coal, you make contact with an age so far away that the mind grows dizzy in thinking of it.

The bit of polished marble on your desk has come through such a transformation of heat, titanic pressure, amalgamation and coloring from lurid fires in the earth's laboratory, that the human mind cannot picture a shadow of the process.

All of these thoughts should lead the sincere mind to believe that Mother Nature intended these useful beautiful necessary elements for humanity's untrammelled use. She did not intend them to be cornered and exploited for the private profit of the few rich and powerful agencies which now sell them to us or deny our use of them if we have not the price.

Humanity's Need should be higher than selfish profit.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor, Strathmore Standard
Edmonton—With the Summer School for teachers in session in the 22nd issue, a great deal of attention is paid to Educational Problems. The outcomes of our educational system are being critically analyzed and possible improvements are suggested.

As the course in high school and some other institutions of learning stands today the theory of mental discipline still finds a prominent place.

Ruediger in his Teaching Procedures advocates the direct attack method of teaching. This means vitalizing the subject matter and making a direct attack on the objective in view. Let us relate this to Physics. Physics as taught in the past consisted in meaningless memorization of formulas, rules and mathematical manipulation. Why not attach the real and practical? First instruct the student by letting him observe the natural phenomena. Visit the factories, power plants and machine shops. With the interest in Physics thus aroused the student will naturally desire to find out the laws and formulas that govern these practical things. The aims and objectives of education are not easy to define. Great men of different ages have differed widely. Today the general accepted definition is the one by Nicholas Murray Butler, adjustment of the individual to his environment.

It is of interest to observe to what extent great men in the field of philosophy and psychology hold to the same viewpoint. To prepare us for complete living is the function that education has to discharge, as defined by one of the greatest. Blakey says this in another way, education should make a socially efficient individual. The interpretation of this statement might to a small extent be equip an individual to pull his own weight— interfere as little as possible with the efforts of others—to further social progress. Chapman and Count sum this up in a nutshell and say education is a method of assisting an initially ill adapted individual to cope with the ever increasing complexities of the world.

According to this most of us are initially ill adapted individuals. To the outcomes of education warrant the expenditures that Alberta is making in this direction?

With the complexities of our present day world and the fact that a race as well as an individual is able to learn it will probably be some time before our educational system will be readjusted.

Youth is generally light and buoyant and is perfectly satisfied to accept the old order of things as long as this is the path of least resistance. Persistent and painstaking effort is the only force that has accomplished anything worth while in many fields. There is no royal road to learning.

Sincerely, C. C. FPP.

SUMMER FEEDING OF

WORK HORSES

For horses at work a combination of feeds in a variety of forms gives best results. Oats, bran, oat shaves and mixed hays are very suitable. Cracked barley, wheat or rye may form a part of the concentrate ration but should be fed with other more bulky feeds such as oats or bran. The farmer have a tendency to become lazy and bail up when being chewed, which may lead to impaction of the stomach or bowels unless they are mixed with bran or ground oats. The kinds of feed used, the quantity per horse and the manner of feeding depend upon the age, size and condition of the horse, and the nature and severity of the work. It is seldom that two horses in a team can be fed exactly alike as some horses are easy and others hard feeders, requiring considerably more grain and roughage for the same amount of work.

A good practice in feeding horses that are doing medium to hard work is to allow a daily ration of one pound of roughage and one pound of grain per 100 pounds live weight. A gallon measure will hold roughly four pounds of whole oats, six pounds of whole barley and seven and one half pounds of whole wheat. When horses are on light work, or part time idle, the grain ration should be cut down at least a half. A good plan is to feed work horses on Saturday nights a mixture of one third bran and two thirds oats or other grain when grain alone is fed. Lack of exercise and continued heavy feeding are two of the greatest enemies of the work horse.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alberta, the work horses are turned out on grass pasture at night during the summer. The managers are filled with hay early so they can eat what they like before being turned out for the night. Not only does the grass provide succulence, which tends to regulate and have a tonic effect on the system, but it decreases the amount of hay needed, and eliminates the necessity of bedding and cleaning the stall each day.

—O:—

Mrs. Teawhiffle— Did you change the napkins, as I told you?

New Maid— Yern! I shuffled 'em and dealt them out so's no one gets the same one he had at breakfast.

A Scotman holding an important job in the city was always being visited by an English friend about his nationality. By a curious chance the two met on holiday.

—1:—1:—1:
Hullo, chaffed the Englishman, how on earth is your office managing to get on without you?
Fairly well, answered the Scot, casually. You see, I left two Eng fishermen and four Welshmen in my place.

—1:—1:—1:
Mistress—If my husband brings his friends to dinner are you prepared?
New Cook—Yes ma'am. My bag is already packed.
Chief—Pardon me, but why are you walking down the street, going first to one side of the sidewalk and then to the other?
Lady—In on my husband's trail.

—1:—1:—1:
Motocars are not the only things that have been improved, we learn from an enterprising hat maker. We suppose hats now have balloon tires, too, the brims to absorb minor shocks as they roll down the street.
The "knee action" of course is supplied by the owner in pursuit.

—1:—1:—1:
Wife—Is my hat on straight dear?
Husband—(in a hurry) Oh yes, quite straight.
Are you sure?
Yes, yes—do come along.
Oh dear, I must go back. You see it is not fashionable to wear this out of hat straight.

—1:—1:—1:
In the forest the leaves are falling.
Goldenrod beckons, wild geese are calling;
But here in the city, the whole world hollers,
I want an apartment for forty-five dollars!

—1:—1:—1:
Barrister—How many children have you?
Man—Let's see—Tom, Bill, Nelly, Larry.
Small boy at the back of the court: Don't forget me father.

—1:—1:—1:

The offer promises to be very alluring to Canadians and visitors to the Dominion as well.

—1:—1:—1:
Quebec Province is alive with festal celebrations and gala events this year marking the anniversaries of some of the most memorable events in its history. Among them and the most important is the 400th anniversary of the discovery of Canada by Jacques Cartier in July 1534.

It is announced by the Canadian Pacific. The cruise will take 36 days, leaving New York January 18, 1935 and returning there April 24.
